"WHAT'S YOUR SECRET?" Merle Haile asks as she judges a turkey at the recent FWTS. Merle and some other AWS members discovered it wasn't easy to raise a turkey to these dimensions. See story.

AWS Mascots Die

by Merle Haile

It is with deep sorrow that we of the AWS inform you of the death of our prospective mascots.

With best intentions, six small turkeys were recently obtained from a local turkey hatchery. It was our desire to raise these turkeys so that they could at least make an appearance at school. An indication of the sincerity of our plans is the fact that the turkeys were given the names which follow: Praa, Simone, Antoinette, Goosey, Lynnette, and Roy. However, due to unavoidable incidences, none of them survived the Christmas vacation.

Even with the best care and professional knowledge, the raising of this type of fowl is uncertain. There are many dangers to be encountered. Such things as cold, improper diet, uneven schedule, and dirty drinking water may cause the death of these babies. A less controllable factor is the lack of grey matter on the part of the turkeys.

The turkeys were being kept in the home of one of our members who has had experience in the poultry field. A makeshift brooder was constructed and feed and water supplied. During the transferring to the brooder the first death occurred when one of the babies was dropped from a considerable height. Two more succumbed during the night, as did the fourth on the following evening. The remaining two seemed to be the strongest and were progressing very nicely until they spent a night with the brooder light turned off.

Student Officers And Faculty Visit Schools

This school year various members of our faculty have been visiting high schools upon invitation to talk about college plans with the students and to encourage them to consider Stanislaus State. Recently two of the Student Body officers were asked to accompany the faculty members on their visits. Bob Turnbow

Dick Brown Legend Editor

Dick Brown has been appointed editor of the Legend, the college yearbook.

Brown is at the present time appointing his staff. Those who have been selected to work with him this coming year are: Myrle Haile, Assistant-editor, Linda Sanders, Art-editor, and Chuck Beery, Layout-editor. Among the offices yet to be filled is that of business manager.

A definite publishing date has not yet been set, but it will be far enough away so that the pictures of both January and June graduates will be included. Many snapshots of student activities and entertainment will also be included.

Bob Turnbow, student body president is now preparing a guidebook for the use of the Legend staff. This is designed to be a guide for the Legend.

The staff all agree that the first yearbook was excellent and important because of the fact it is the pioneer edition. However, it is felt that the next one will be even better; plans are now underway to make it so.

Vacation's Past

by Jackie Smith

Christmas vacation was spent in several different ways by our students and faculty. For instance, LeRoy Rostad was a tour guide for Greyhound. His tour started in Sacramento travelled to Southern Calif., and returned to Sacramento.

The group had choice seats at the Rose Parade. They visited Marine Land and went to a party on New Year's Eve at the Statler-Hilton in Los Angeles.

Another student Doug Hendricks had his first experience in skiing. He remarked about the discovery of some new muscles.

Prof. Riznik travelled to the East Coast to attend the American Historical Association meeting in Washington D.C. This was an enjoyable and profitable experience for him.

Carolyn Clapp visited San Francisco for a day of her vacation. Jackie Smith spent several days in Sonora.

Some students spent their vacations studying industriously, while others were in bed with the flu.

travelled with Dr. Caswell, Bruggman and Mr. Aubert to Stagg High School in Stockton. She talked about the leadership and creative opportunities present at state colleges.

A FAMILIAR SCENE but behind closed doors is the one pictured above. Here senior Barbara Wright of Modesto and Dean Joseph Bruggman are preparing to tape an interview for State College Report. On the broadcast people from all phases of the activities at SSC are interviewed. The broadcast may be heard on: KTUR-Turlock, Friday at 8:45 p.m.; KHOM-Turlock, Wednesday at 7:15 p.m.; and KWIP-Merced, Monday at 12:30 noon.

Campus Personality

by Lionel Williams and Nedra Sahlstrom

Zen, is a Japanese school of Mahay and Buddhism that teaches self-discipline, deep meditation, and the attainment of enlightenment by direct intuitive into a self-validating transcendent truth beyond all intellectual conceptions and characteristically expresses its teachings in paradoxical and nonlogical forms.

Zen Unattachment

The study of Zen, is fine because we can suppose that most people don't know enough about it to object on approve. Unattachment, however, is a flag of a different color. Everybody who is attached, and everybody is who lives in our unattached society would like to become unattached, but they really don't want anyone to know that attachments are—a pain in the well, you know the unattached nose or someplace. Now a professor who teaches Zen is fine, but a professor who says the word unattachment in a country of attachments is in for trouble. Take for example, that bald-headed, slip-chested, flat-footed attached Ph.D. at Stanislaus State who teaches, when no one is looking, something about Zen, and of course, there are times when he forgets he is in a free country with freedom of speech insured by the FBI and he mentions the word unattachment. Ah, the magic word is spoken and all heaven breaks loose. The professor in investigated by the House of unattachment activities which find out to their joy that at one time in his life the professor had a preference for "brown" rice. The WCTU complains about an epidemic of uclers, unattachments, and what about alimony? The school board calls a special meeting, women or welfare find other interests besides mother's day, the insurance company become upset, and only the students shout with Glee; Ha, no grades, Hail Zen, Hail unattachments.

All this would probably happen simply because a bald-headed, slip-chested, flat-footed little professor probably likes to cook unattached marshmallows over an unattached fire in an unattached Buddha alter.

So, if you would like to know how marshmallows taste with no attachments, take a class from Dr. Donald Frantz.

We can always recite the many significant facts relating to a personality. For instance Dr. Donald Frantz to SSC from Bakersfield Junior College after receiving his Ph.D. in Humanities and World Religions from UCLA. His thesis: was entitled "Search for Significant Form: An Evaluation of the Symbols of Revolt and Tradition in American Literature, Painting and Music.

We can say that Dr. Frantz is a Fullbright Scholar who will leave our campus for a period of a year to go to Thailand where he will teach at the University of Chulalong Korn in Bangkok and will also study Buddhism.

Student Gov't. Beat

by Jackie Smith

The Executive Board met December 29 to take care of some pressing business. A budget was discussed and tentative plans were made for it. It will probably be revised before it will be enacted.

January 3 the Executive Board held its regular meeting. Bill York was authorized to pay the following bills: Modesto Tribune $115, Walters 14.69, and 5.01 for telephone expenses.

Janice Berbena was appointed to be in charge of recruiting people to validate student body cards at pre-registration and registration.

Kohn Authors Article

Walter Kohn has written an article entitled "Gems of the Alps" which appears in the January issue of the national magazine "Gems and Minerals."

Kohn is a member of the SSC library staff.

SSC Invited to Speech Confab

The SSC Speech Department has received an invitation to the nation-wide speech competition, the "Tournament of Peers" to be held April 13 at Occidental College in Los Angeles.

The College plans to send representatives.

There are many facts which can be recited with regard to this man's accomplishments. Certainly they are significant and of importance. To the student within his classroom or the person who meets him professionally or socially these facts pale in importance as his sensitivity and sheer enthusiasm for the literature he studies and the people it brings him into contact with power beyond these facts.

Bald-headed, slip-chested and flat-footed is the way in which Dr. Frantz is inclined to describe himself. It is this same realism and humor with which he can see himself that he brings into the classroom where Geoffrey Chaucer, John Donne, Odysseus or Siddhartha are discussed. No one is exempt from this humor or this realism once they enter the classroom of Dr. Frantz.

This is not to imply that Dr. Frantz's classroom exists for the purpose of fun and games. This is certainly not the case. No value is so sacred that he and his students cannot question it. It becomes not the case of acceptance of traditional thought, nor is it the bootless arguments which result from the attempts of the iconoclast. It is instead an attempt to reach Nirvana or what ever one would care to call it (it is not a matter of terminology really, but a state of mind, in other words, to know the sound of one hand clapping.)

It is difficult to seriously convey the impressions of another personality and still maintain an Aristotelian mean. It might be better to say simply that Dr. Frantz represents the classical conception of the scholar, a title whose meaning is nearly lost in an age of titled people who know so little.

OUR APOLOGIES to Barnes Riznik, above, our first Campus Personality. Via the editor's filing system, his picture was lost when the paper went to press and it only showed its face a few days ago.

Senior Class Bake Sale Feb. 9th & 10th

A fund raising bake sale will be held February ninth and tenth. The bake sale will be held at the college on February ninth, and at Richard and Chambers Stationary Store on February 10.

The Senior Class Constitution has been revised. A proposed Senior Motto and proposed Senior Colors are to be placed in the College Digest. If there are other proposals for either the motto or the colors they should be given to a senior class officer.

The Senior Gift, the J. Burton Vasche Award and the Senior breakfast for the June graduation were discussed.

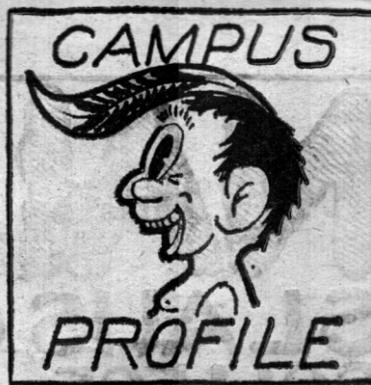

The possibility of a Senior-Alumni Dinner in March is now being considered. Perhaps such an activity can be made an annual affair.

Class President, Doug Hendricks urges that more seniors attend the Senior Class meetings, if possible.

by Lionel Williams

In the beginning God created the Heavens and the earth and of course, according to 'unquestionable sources' he created all the birds, and bees, and flowers, and turkeys and things and then he said: I am lonely so I think I will cause the winds to blow and I will make me a man and I will call him Joe. (It was sort of difficult for me to work in the name Chuck, since some of the words that sound like are thought by some to be shocking).

I suppose after several profiles one might have received the impression that there was an overabundance of women on the campus or that I didn't like men or some other truthful idea. Well, perish the thought, I like men, but I love women; that's all. However, due to overwhelming demands from the AMS I have consented to allow a member of the weaker sex space in the paper of international fame the Signal. Rah rah! (Just a little example of my school spirit dear reader that is all, editor's policy, you know.)

Charles Beery born? Yes, in Oakland, California, December 27, 1936. The grammar schools he attended were in Modesto as well as the high schools. He went first to Modesto High and then he went to Downey since he couldn't stand to be partial. Then the

Faculty Party

Professor James Hanson and his wife joined the ranks of holiday hosts when they opened their home to the faculty, staff, and friends.

On Saturday evening, December 16, the faculty, the staff and many friends of the Hanson's gathered at their home, 2570 El Camino Avenue, for a time of visitation and refreshments. Guests arrived and departed at will through out the evening.

Periodicals List Complete

An alphabetical list of periodical holdings of the Stanislaus State College Library, as of November 15, 1961, covering over 600 magazines, 11 newspapers, 23 indexes and abstracts has just been completed and should be of considerable value to students. The list shows the holdings of the library at a glance.

Up to date listings can be ascertained by consulting the Periodical Serial Record located next to the Card Catalog.

Attention should be drawn also to the fact, that following the holdings of each individual magazine, there is a list of indexes and abstracts covering this specific magazine. Holdings on microfilm are also shown and a microfilm reader is available for use at the Library.

A classified list will be added at an early date.

head of creation went to Modesto Junior College where he majored in Social Science. He went into business for himself during the years of 1956-57. He went in the Army for reasons connected with his draft board and started in the collection business in the years 60-61 in the town of Merced.

When asked how SSC compared with other Colleges he had been acquainted with, old Charles pulled out his transcripts and said that "SSC compares favorably with Modesto Junior College academically." When asked what he likes best about the college he said "the diversity of age groups." he disliked, however, the lack of support of student activities that interest him are AMS, AWS and the Writers Club. Chuck stated that he would like to see among other things a Coin Club and Wildlife Society (my, that sounds Freudian) established on campus. When I very discreetly inquired about his "off campus activities" and interests, he replied, looking at the girl's legs that just passed, other pursuits my boy, such as" and he bent over to whisper in my ear still watching the girl's lovely legs, "fishing, coin and stamp collecting and poster art."

Chuck plans to teach in the secondary field and he says, puffing out to show his chest and showing me the Bill of Rights, "Education is far short of its goals in connection with an informed American public.

History, social sciences, and government in general, must be emphasized to a greater extent. With these enlarged, the 18-yr-old should have the vote." (Sounds like a good Republican doesn't he.) He also says, that the goals of the social science department should be "to give the average student a grasp of world history and government, and especially of the United States and its democratic foundations. More study and PRACTICE should be devoted to the later."

When I asked Chuck what his philosophy was concerning people, he sat there for a moment in deep thought until the same girl came by again, then he jumped up reached for a one-a-day vitamin and said "Our lives are too short."

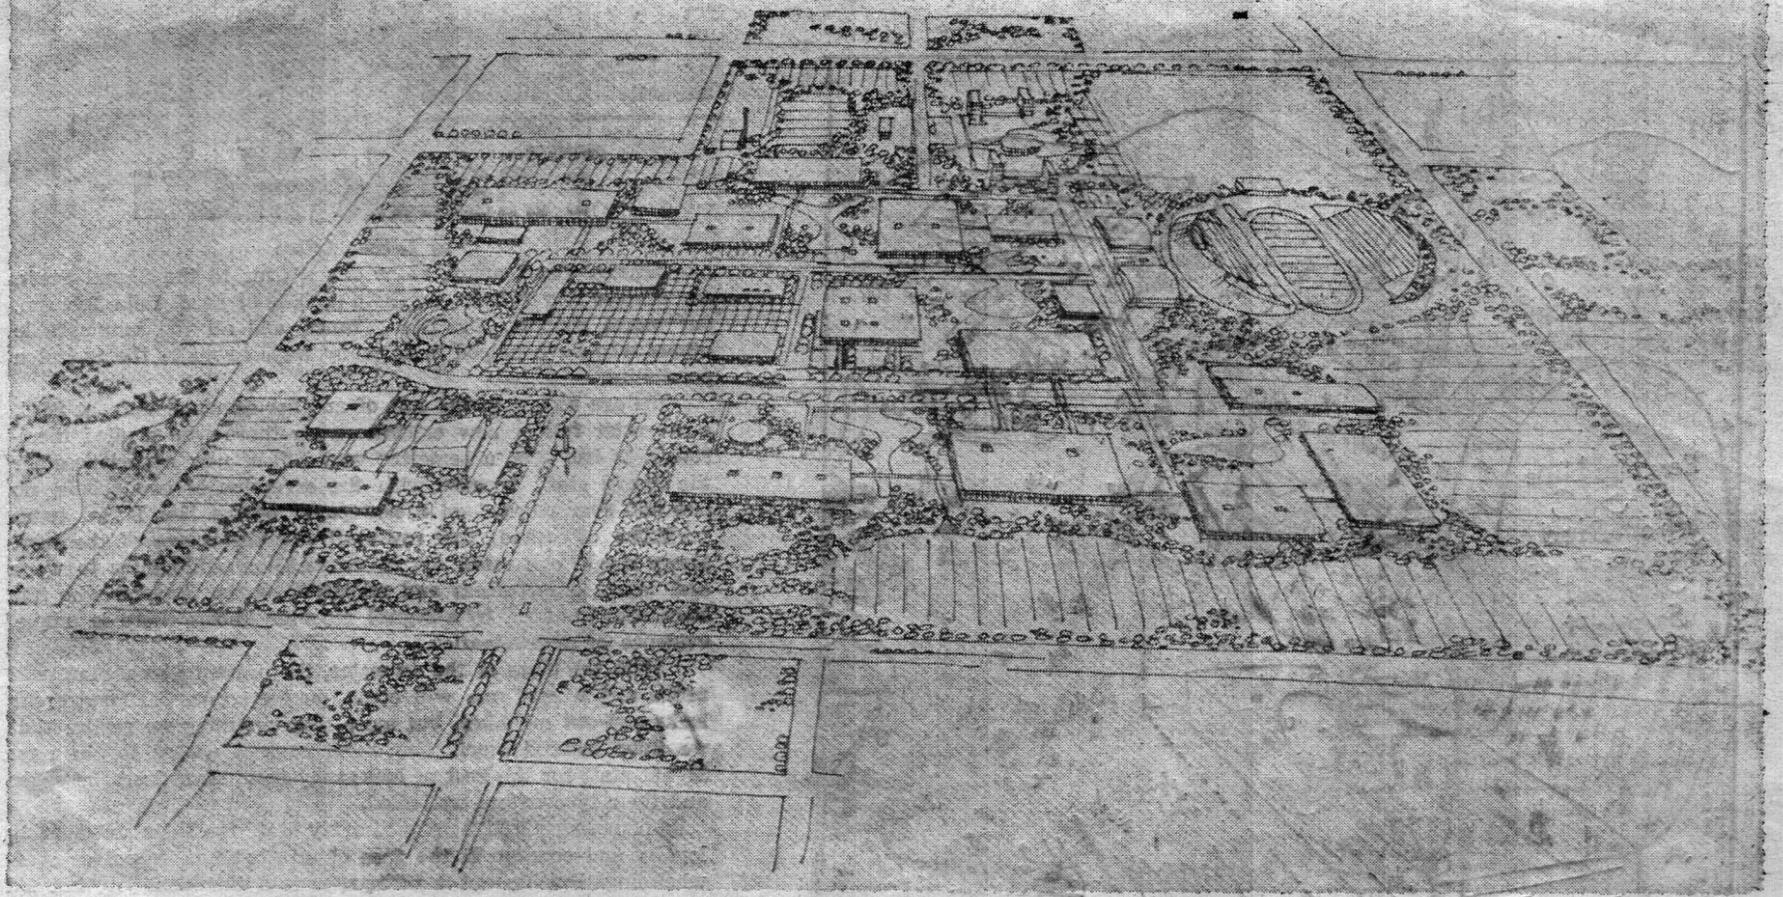

Well, all I can say is that the world needs more Chucks even with his vitamin pills.

Limelitters At MJC

The nationally famous Limelitters will present a Concert at MJC on February 12, 1962.

The folk-singing trio will perform on Monday evening, February 12, at the MJC auditorium.

Tickets will be available two weeks prior to the concert for MJC student body card holders for $1.50. Non-card holders may purchase tickets for $2.50 one week prior to the performance.

The above photograph shows the ultimate master plan for the permanent Stanislaus State College campus at Geer and Monte Vista Roads. The plan was developed by John Lyon Reid who is the consulting architect for SSC. The plan features a student orientated core containing the library, cafeteria and student activities building. The classroom buildings surround the core. To the right of the plan is the stadium and athletic play fields. The performing arts buildings are located near the Monte Vista and Dell's Lane entrance (left). A large reflecting pond, which serves as a catch basin for drainage, is located at the entrance to the campus. Other ponds are planned for various other locations on the site. The plan also features community parks at the various entrances to the campus which are designed to help bring the community into the campus and the campus into the community.

The Blue Kangaroo

by Nedra Sahlstrom

On the Thursday after Christmas vacation, a blue kangaroo appeared at the door of Donnelly Hall. We being eager, yet discerning reporters, alert to any possibility of news on the SSC Campus, rushed to interview this strange beast as to purpose and principle.

Due to our great perseverance and daring as reporters, he informed us with great reluctance that he was the ghost of New Year's Past, echoing to our delight the sentiments of others. He went further to say that he was not an optical illusion, but that his existence rested totally upon the reality of paper mache.

He was constructed, he informed us, with great difficulty, by meritorious students of Mr. Reinholtz's Art in the Elementary School Class, over the Christmas vacation.

He said he realized that he was quite a shock to students returning shakely from a long vacation. He regretted this fact, but stated that there was little he could do about his blueness, since this had been inflicted upon him.

We expressed our sympathy at his plight and thanked him for his kindness in granting our interview. As we walked away, he seemed to us almost gay, but we knew somehow that he'd come to a bad end.

AWS Mascots

The AWS does have some happier news to report. The Pepsi Drive has been very successful. The AWS plans to present the money received from the drive to the Faith Home for Boys.

The AWS has also been planning a night away from their studies. They are making plans to attend the production of South Pacific which will be presented at Modesto Junior College.

SSC Community Chorus Calls For New Voices

All interested SSC students and area residents are urged to contact Prof. Clifford Cunha, chorus director.

A particular need exists in the men's sections for tenor and bass voices. The only requirement for membership is experience in part singing and a willingness to work.

The chorus will rehearse each Tuesday evening from 6:30 p.m. to 8 p.m. for the remainder of this semester. During the spring semester the chorus will meet Tuesday evenings from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. The chorus meets in Room 5 of Donnelly Hall.

The Chorus will appear at the SSC Baccalaureate on January 27, 4 p.m. in the Turlock High School Auditorium.

Alumni Report

Latest reports from the Alumni Association show that they are a very active and progressive group.

The business of this club is similar to other clubs on campus at the present time. They are working on their constitution and designs for an emblem to represent the organization. At the same time plans are being made to send out a newsletter. This will be published quarterly or semi-annually and is to inform members and interested persons of the club activities.

On Saturday, December 9, Beverly Palmer, president of the Alumni Association and Grace Kimoto, Vice President, went as representatives of the group to Fresno State College for a state-wide meeting of all Alumni Associations. Each college sent one to three representatives.

Mrs. Palmer said that it was a very enjoyable and informative meeting. They discussed many good ideas concerning fund-raising and increasing the interest in the organization.

Our representative feel that these were ideas which would be profitable to them.

Who's Who

Bill York is the Student Body Treasurer and is business manager for the campus publication, the Signal. Bill is a senior business major from Hughson. Last year Bill also worked as Signal business manager.

Student Pay Scale

Quiet Please!

by Doug Hendricks

The Stanislaus State College library, despite great hardships as to lack of bookshelf space and lack of space for students and employees to work, has done a miraculous job of securing great quantities of material for all fields.

The fields of Education and Social Science command a greater portion of the amount of literature available in the library. Business, Science, Humanities, and Art literature make up the rest. R. Dean Galloway, head librarian, has secured many volumes of fiction and non-fiction, as well as reference books. The library is operating on a small annual budget, so it can be easily seen that Galloway has done a meritorious job in the allocation of a specified amount of money to each department for needed books.

Recently it became necessary to annex the building next to the library for storage of some books and periodicals since the library became filled to capacity.

As far as the atmosphere in this solemn institution is concerned, it exudes all the still and quiet of Macy's two days before Christmas. Because of the cramped work space it is impossible for many students to study in the library. Employees are forced to use typewriters on tables which should be reserved for students. When one attempts to sit down and read, a blast of hot air from the heater makes reading impossible. Papers scatter when the blower on the heater is turned on.

All things considered, Galloway and his staff have done the best possible with the facilities provided. At least they have something to look forward to when they move into the new library in 1963. Until that day comes it is the hope of the writer that everyone will be able to put up with the present facilities, and maybe a few changes can be made prior to 1963.

Letter To The Editor

To the Signal Editor and SSC students:

The Associated Men Students of SSC need the support of all men enrolled for the new semester! The future of the school depends in good part, upon such a club!

We are not concerned necessarily with spirit; we need a foundation: constitution, money, membership, and basic plans for participation in future functions. Dances, social hours, and other events at the college this past semester have been few, but nevertheless successful. The AMS feels that more of such activities should mark the spring semester.

It is the desire of the AMS to participate in any functions of the college, rather than "just belonging." In order that these aims be accomplished, we urge all men with any concern for the future of SSC to join this organization. It is not the purpose of AMS to glorify its own name, but rather to build the name of our school!

Thank You

by Loree McGill

"Thank You," many, many times over to the Signal Staff, our advisor Roy Wilson, our help in time of need, Lola Johnson, our moral support, Dr. Don Frantz, and all the innumerable others who have helped in so many ways to make the Signal a possibility.

We are almost to the end of another semester here at SSC, a semester full of new experiences for those who availed themselves. It has been a semester very full of new experiences for the Signal staff, because with the exception of two people, no one had ever worked on a newspaper before. But I feel (with prejudice of course) that my staff was the cream of the crop. Every single one rated A-1 in cooperation, willingness to work and learn, cheerfulness and stick-to-itiveness. Anyone who has been 'bloodhounded' by a Signal reporter knows there is ample evidence of determination.

With the close of the semester, the present Signal staff will retire and a new one will come on the scene. We realize our lacks and our mistakes, but more than anything we realize that we have learned much. Our most earnest wishes to the next Signal staff for the best of luck; may their advertisers be eager and their typewriters well-oiled.

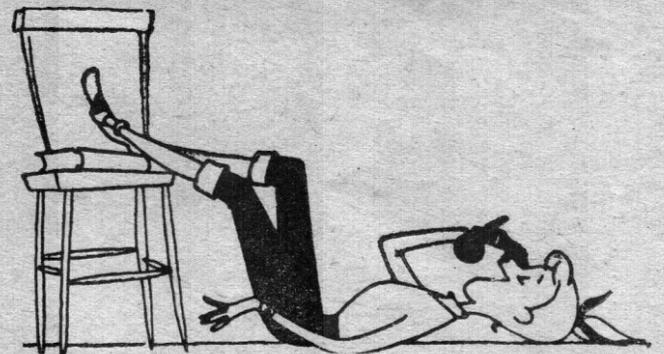

In closing I'd like to praise my staff for their unwavering loyalty and courage in the face of all problems, trivial or overwhelming. Putting out a newspaper is a thankless job, but I'd like to say that its thanks enough to have had the privilege of working with persons such as these.

"... and he's got a checking account!"

That's a good recommendation for anyone. Checks are the business-like way to pay your bills—because a check is payment and receipt both. Besides, paying by check is easier too—you can take care of a month's bills in just a few minutes. You'll like having a checking account at Security State Bank. Open one this week.
